ELKO — State Sen. Mark Amodei, R-Carson City, who is a hopeful for the U.S. Senate seat held by Sen. Harry Reid, D-Nev., plans a meet-and-greet event in Elko Friday to talk with local residents about the issues.

He will be at Machi's in downtown Elko at 5:30 p.m. as part of his campaign that he said Wednesday is taking him around the state to spread the word about his years of political experience

“The bottom line is I think my credentials are the strongest in the race, but there are a lot of people who don't know me. You can fix that, but you can't fix experience. We need to put the strongest candidate forward,” Amodei said in a telephone interview.

He has been in the Nevada Senate for 12 years, after one Assembly term, and he said he will be leaving the Senate “by virtue of term limits.”
